

BLACKEAGLE/BLACKEAGLE

DENVER, COLORADO OFFICE DETAIL SHEET

(NOTE: Unless otherwise noted, all personnel listed on this page are NPCs)

LOCATION

Minoru Yasui Plaza
303 W. Colfax, Ste. 417-9
Denver, CO 80201

(fictional) After the 2010 bomb threat at the Minoru Yasui Plaza building, which until then had housed city offices for Denver, it was determined higher security was needed for the building, which would require more money. Five suites had not been in use for more than a year at that time, due to budget cutbacks, so the City Council agreed it would be prudent to have renters in four of those spaces, and open the fifth to building security for enhanced space, since their office next door was not much larger than four service closets connected together and opened. BlackEagle had been seeking to open an office in Denver at that time, anyway, and were searching for a place when word reached the survey team, lead by Dave Hargreaves, the Senior Cell Leader for the forthcoming new office. He immediately contacted Attorney Baez, who'd agreed to help broker a deal when a suitable location was found, and the office has been open –as of the beginning of our game– for five months, now.

Two separate suites are actually in use, one portion across from the other. The Southern office is 25' square, houses the Deputy Senior Cell Leader, Jamie Silver's, office, as well as individual spaces for each of six cells to be assigned this location when finally at capacity. The Northern office is also 25' square, and houses Mr. Hargreaves' office, Mr. Baez' legal

PERSONNEL

SENIOR CELL LEADER, David N. Hargreaves

Hargreaves was among the first to sign on with B/E-2 in 1990, and aided in establishing the BlackEagle Entry Training Program, though not before the execution of a half-dozen completed missions, where he was injured twice and contracted Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder. Because he continued performing missions, remaining loyal to B/E, he was offered a posting in early 2010 to establish and run the Denver franchise office. He performed his final field mission in July 2010 and was relieved of operational status for the sake of promotion.

In general, Dave –as he prefers to be called– is a free-spirited type, at least on the outside, though an extended conversation with the man will reveal a side that is very impatient and angers quickly. This trait is especially pronounced when his requirements are questioned, his orders countermanded –even if the offender is correct–, or too much minutiae is being introduced into the present conversation. He has absolutely zero patience for the legal process, having dealt entirely too often with attorney's out to save their own skin rather than brokering a decent deal for the sake of operative/cell safety, though this does not seem to extend to Mr. Baez. Indeed, the two have become racquetball partners over the past half-decade, and close friends beyond either court.

Dave is not as wealthy, and a whole lot more banged up, by his time with B/E-2 than he'd hoped to be, though he has channeled much of his resentment into helping build the company he's been with since just after leaving the Army Rangers for it. Hargreaves field experience is such that, as he managed to climb the ladder in this company, the number of casualties among corporate employees has gradually dropped. He hopes to be able to retire within the next decade, with a great deal more cash –Senior Cell Leader percentage cuts from contracts are usually much higher than the Cell members or leaders performing the contracts, and he has educated himself in the use of the New York Stock Exchange, having hired the stock brokers that would help increase his bread the most. His hope is to leave the game very soon because, in the twenty years since becoming a field operative, battlefield conduct and requirements have become much more stringent than he likes it to be.

Further development of office personnel will progress as time and desire permits.

office, a Conference Room, where privacy must be maintained, the Reception desk, and cubicles for the remaining Administrative, Legal, and Analysis divisions of the office. Parking is available in the Colfax-facing parking levels of the MYP building and ground-level behind it, though that parking lot is perpetually full. Access to the MYP building is available between the hours of 6:30am and 8:30pm Monday through Saturday, and 9am to 7pm on Sunday, which may be accepted by the Building Superintendent, Mick Rogers, or the City Manager. Mr. Hargreaves has requested of all BlackEagle personnel to not be present in or around the building outside those times. Multiple exits exist from the MYP building, accessible from three stairwells, the parking garage, and two elevator shafts.

Logistics & Procurement is renting an old city maintenance "shed" behind the Minoru Yasui Plaza building, unused by the Denver Fire Department museum, which has space for the required large safe, the storage crib (cage), the off-site storage and secondary server room, and four company vehicles. This building is time-limited only by Mr. Twowolves, who keeps a far more liberal schedule and makes room for B/E-2 personnel as necessary.
